1. The Crisis and Conflict Analysis Team comprises of leading academicians, strategists, researchers and policy analysts interested in the study of international relations. The members of this team meet periodically in groups; one team is devoted to the study of the Afghan crisis and conflict. In the light of carefully monitored information each group reviews current developments in its respective conflict area, and offers various policy options for consideration. While the Institute of Strategic Studies provides the forum, coordinates research and publishes the findings of the Crisis and Conflict Analysis Team, it does not necessarily share the views expressed by the team members whose participation in this group is in their individual capacity.

2. The information and overt intelligence incorporated in this report after collection, collation, and evaluation is based on primary and secondary sources of all the parties in the conflict. The primary sources availed are the monitoring reports of Pakistan Broadcasting Corporation covering Moscow, Tashkent, Dushambe and Kabul broadcasts, Afghan, Soviet, and other Embassy handouts, and information received from the Afghan Documentation Centre, Afghan Information Centre, the Afghan Islamic Press, and the Agency Afghan Press files. Secondary sources are the international media, and research papers and writings of the academicians. We are aware of the paucity of correct, complete and timely information from closed societies, as also the lack of formal and trained command, control, communication and intelligence set-up in the Mujahideen, as present in regular armies.

Following the general pattern of war in Afghanistan, the Soviet-Kabul forces made two prominent attempts during the past month, one in Qandahar and the other in Paktiya, to either dislodge the Mujahideen from strategic locations or to wrest from them the control of important supply routes. On their side the Mujahideen continued to embarrass the Kabul regime by striking at their political and military prestige points.  - The attention of the consultative bodies of the ministries, department and official incharge of concerned organs, comrades Lemar Lakanwal, Pakteen, Rawar and Jalalar, should be drawn to this point that necessary measures have not been taken by them for the accomplishment of the first quarter plans of 1365 HS (1986) and they are obliged to remove the existing deficiencies and backwardness in the second quarter of the current year.

- It recommended the CC of NFF (a social and creative organisation) to turn the second congress into an important event for implementation of the resolution of 16th and 19th plenums of PDPA CC and step up activities for finding ways of national compromise, strengthening of armed forces, expansion of co-operation with religious and other organisations as well as expansion of state power in localities.
- It issued directives to the Commerce Ministry to work out a comprehensive plan for eliminating existing short comings, achieving rapid improvement for organisation of domestic and foreign trade, ensuring the supply of essential goods to the population of cities and villages.
- to maintain necessary order in distribution, storing and transport of commodities particularly the goods supplied through gratis assistance of the Soviet Union.
